Sections 18(1)(b) and (c) – mark is descriptive and not distinctive

Objection	We cannot register a mark that describes the goods and/or services, or some characteristic of them. Mark is descriptive A mark is descriptive if the average consumer would see the mark as a normal way of describing the goods and/or services it is applied to, or some characteristic of them. Our research indicates that century can refer to a family of serif typeface fonts. Our research indicates that century can refer to a variety of preserved eggs. Our research indicates that century can refer to several varieties of plants, including agave. We consider the average consumers of the goods and/or services would understand the mark as merely describing the above goods or services as opposed to being seen as a badge of origin. Mark is not distinctive A trade mark is a sign that indicates the trade source of goods and/or services. A trade mark must distinguish one trader's goods and/or services from those of other traders. We consider that other traders are likely to want to use a mark like yours in relation to their goods or services, in the ordinary course of business and without improper motive. We also consider your mark is unlikely to act as a badge of origin for a single trader.
Goods and/or services	Class 7: Printing machines; printing plates. Class 9: Printers for use with computers. Class 16: Printing type.

9. Information relating to subsequent procedure:

Responding to this refusal

A response to this refusal can be made in writing via the IPONZ online case management system at www.iponz.govt.nz.

To respond, you will need to appoint a local agent to manage your New Zealand designation.

A local agent must have:

- an address for service in New Zealand or Australia, and
- an account in the IPONZ online case management system.

Note: If your designation has an international representative, you will still need to appoint a local agent to manage your New Zealand designation. Your local agent may or may not be the same as your international representative. We recommend that you engage the services of a local intellectual property professional to act as your local agent.

Timeframe for responding

If the holder does not respond by the deadline for response indicated in box 8, this refusal becomes final for the specified goods and/or services.

Refusal still possible following opposition

If we subsequently accept the designation in New Zealand, refusal may still result from an opposition. The opposition period runs for three months from the date of advertisement of the mark. It is possible that an opposition may be filed more than 18 months from the date we were notified of the international registration.

10. Signature of the Office:

Intellectual Property Office of New Zealand

Jack Walters
Trade Mark Examiner

For the Commissioner of Trade Marks

11. Provisions of relevant law:

Trade Marks Act 2002

5 Interpretation

- (1) In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,— trade mark—
- (a) means any sign capable of—
 - (i) being represented graphically; and
 - (ii) distinguishing the goods or services of one person from those of another person; and
 - (b) includes,—
 - (i) except in section 85, a certification trade mark; and
 - (ii) except in section 85, a collective trade mark

18 Non-distinctive trade mark not registrable

- (1) The Commissioner must not register—
- (a) a sign that is not a trade mark;
 - (b) a trade mark that has no distinctive character;
 - (c) a trade mark that consists only of signs or indications that may serve, in trade, to designate the kind, quality, quantity, intended purpose, value, geographical origin, time of production of goods or of rendering of services, or other characteristics of goods or services;
 - (d) a trade mark that consists only of signs or indications that have become customary in the current language or in the bona fide and established practices of trade.
- (2) The Commissioner must not refuse to register a trade mark under subsection (1)(b), (c), or (d) if, before the date of application for registration, as a result of either the use made of it or of any other circumstances, the trade mark has acquired a distinctive character.

19 Relevance of colour to distinctive character of trade mark

- (1) In determining the distinctive character of a trade mark, the Commissioner or the court, as the case may be, must consider whether or not the trade mark is, or is to be, limited in whole or in part to 1 or more specified colours.
- (2) A trade mark that is, or is to be, registered without limitation of colour is, or will be, registered for all colours.

25 Registrability of identical or similar trade mark

- (1) The Commissioner must not register a trade mark (trade mark A) in respect of any goods or services if—
- (a) it is identical to a trade mark (trade mark B) belonging to a different owner and that is registered, or has priority under section 34 or section 36,—
 - (i) in respect of the same goods or services; or
 - (ii) in respect of goods or services that are similar to those goods and services, and its use is likely to deceive or confuse; or
 - (b) it is similar to a trade mark (trade mark C) that belongs to a different owner and that is registered, or has priority under section 34 or section 36, in respect of the same goods or services or goods or services that are similar to those goods or services, and its use is likely to deceive or confuse; or
 - (c) it is, or an essential element of it is, identical or similar to, or a translation of, a trade mark that is well known in New Zealand (trade mark D), whether through advertising or otherwise, in respect of those goods or services or similar goods or services or any other goods or services if the use of trade mark A would be taken as indicating a connection in the course of trade between those other goods or services and the owner of trade mark D, and would be likely to prejudice the interests of the owner.

- (2) section 26 overrides subsection (1).

26 Exceptions

The Commissioner must register trade mark A if—

- (a) the owner of trade mark B, trade mark C, or trade mark D (as the case may require) consents to the registration of trade mark A; or
- (b) the Commissioner or the court, as the case may be, considers that a case of honest concurrent use exists, or other special circumstances exist, that, in the opinion of the court or the Commissioner, makes it proper for the trade mark to be registered subject to any conditions that the court or the Commissioner may impose.

32 Application: how made

- (1) A person claiming to be the owner of a trade mark or series of trade marks may, on payment of the prescribed fee (if any), apply in the prescribed manner (if any) for the registration of the trade mark or series of trade marks used or proposed to be used in respect of the following:
- (a) particular goods or services within 1 or more classes;
 - (b) particular goods and services within 1 or more classes.
- (2) The Commissioner must not register a trade mark in respect of all of the goods and services included in a class, or a large variety of goods or services, unless the specification is justified by the use or intended use of the sign.

34 Priority of applications for registration of identical or similar trade marks

- (1) If different persons separately apply for the registration of trade marks that are identical or similar to each other and that are in respect of identical or similar goods or services, the first application received by the Commissioner has priority over all the other applications and may proceed.
- (2) If different persons separately apply for the registration of trade marks that are identical or similar to each other and that are in respect of identical or similar goods or services and their applications are received at the same time by the Commissioner,—
- (a) each application has equal priority and may proceed; and
 - (b) the Commissioner must notify each applicant of each other's application.
- (3) For the purposes of subsection (2), 2 or more applications that are received on the same day are to be treated as if they had been received at the same time.
- (4) Section 36 overrides this section.

36 Priority of application to which convention country application relates

- (1) A person who has applied for the registration of a trade mark in a convention country (whether before or after it became a convention country), or his or her legal representative or assignee, is entitled to registration of his or her trade mark in priority to other applicants, and the registration has the same date as the date of the application in the convention country if the application is made within 6 months after the date of the convention country application.

- (2) Subsection (1) applies only in respect of the first application for the trade mark that is made in a convention country by a person and does not apply to any subsequent applications for the trade mark by that person.
- (3) The use of the trade mark in New Zealand during the 6-month period referred to in subsection (1) does not affect the priority of the application for the registration of the trade mark to which the convention country application relates.
